Pierre Hurmic

Mayor of Bordeaux, GSEF Co-Chair City

“The city of Bordeaux is honored to co-chair the GSEF since October 2021. Over the past two years, we have successfully met the challenge of relocating from Seoul to Bordeaux. Despite major changes in governance and the General Secretariat, the momentum and influence of our organization has continued to grow over this period. This success is based on the active participation of our members within the organization, and their ongoing commitment to promoting and supporting the development of the Social and Solidarity Economy in their respective territories and areas.

In 2023, the GSEF's Global Forum, co-organized with the City of Dakar, RACTES and Senegal's Ministry of Microfinance and SSE, brought together nearly 6,000 participants, marking a resounding success on an international scale. It undeniably launched an African dynamic that will come to fruition in 2024 with the organization of FORA'ESS. The momentum created by the recognition of the SSE by the highest international bodies has paved the way for a crucial phase in the implementation of these reference texts, which the GSEF is responsible for supporting.

In 2023, numerous projects have been launched, and continental roadmaps have been developed, thanks to continental dialogue meetings and the leadership of our continental co-chairs. Thematic working groups have been launched: I'll mention two of them in this introduction, which are close to my heart:

- 1) the launch of the SSE Youth Hub: raising awareness and supporting young people towards decent work is a major focus of the GSEF and will be taken to Yamoussoukro in 2024 during the SSE Young Leaders Forum;
- 2) the «Research» working group will enable the publication of studies on the impact of local public policies on the achievement of sustainable development goals.

In 2024, we are committed to further consolidating our network and fostering exchanges within our community, with our members and partners, in order to co-construct models adapted to local diversities and accelerate the development of a fair and sustainable economy, at the heart of environmental and social transitions.

We look forward to the next edition of the Forum, to be held in Bordeaux from October 29 to 31, 2025. On behalf of the 4 local authorities and CRESS Nouvelle-Aquitaine, we would like to express our gratitude for the trust placed in Bordeaux, along with the City, the Metropolitan area, the Gironde Departmental Council and the Regional Council of Nouvelle-Aquitaine, to host this major GSEF event. We invite every GSEF member to mobilize to ensure the success of this event for all players committed to the development of the SSE.”

Stéphane Montuzet

President of the Regional SSE Chamber of Nouvelle-Aquitaine

GSEF Co-Chair SSE Network

«CRESS Nouvelle-Aquitaine is pleased and honored to co-chair the GSEF and represent the actors of the Social and Solidarity Economy who work every day for fairer, more democratic and sustainable local development.

Our strength and wealth lie in our ability to be an organization that is both international and deeply localized. Every GSEF member, on every continent, contributes to enriching our action plan, which aims to bring about the necessary change of scale in SSE worldwide.

The recently-established SSE Youth Hub must be further strengthened and given a central role within the GSEF. Convincing and mobilizing future generations is essential to the sustainability of the SSE, its values and its project. The empowerment of future generations is an ongoing concern for GSEF.

Current times, marked by international and national political challenges, remind us of the importance of our commitment to emancipation and the defense of humanist values. More than ever, the SSE is called upon to act as a bridge between peoples, and the GSEF must embrace this role.

Faced with these challenges, we need to strengthen our cooperation and alliances with other international SSE stakeholders.

We are stepping up our actions, towards greater development. Our presence on every continent and the development of ambitious continental roadmaps reflect our determination to be present and take on our responsibilities. They embody this moment, post UN resolution, which after its recognition must intensify the development of the SSE.

Our governance must continue to evolve in order to give everyone a place. The GSEF must federate and be an effective echo chamber for the will and dynamics of the SSE worldwide.

On the economic front, we need to diversify our financing and develop a range of services suited to the international role we intend to play.

After Dakar, the projection of Bordeaux 2025 opens the door to a new stage rich in exchanges, shared experiences and inspiration.

The future of the SSE depends on our shared commitment, and I'm convinced we're on the right track.»

35 ♦ CONCLUSION

The creation of the GSEF in 2013 was an important step in the international recognition of the social economy as a strategic vector for the social and ecological transition of cities. Initiated by the Seoul Metropolitan Government, the GSEF stands out from existing international SSE initiatives and networks. Its focus on the involvement of local governments is a clear affirmation of their crucial role in the governance and resolution of the major challenges of the 21st century, from climate change to social cohesion and inequalities. Its structure, based on a fundamental partnership between local governments and civil society, is also a clear statement in favor of the renewal of democratic processes and the need for a better balance between the private, collective and public sectors.

In the space of 10 years, the GSEF has become a recognized global network, demonstrating its ability to mobilize a wide range of players on every continent. This ability is reflected in the success of the six GSEF Global Forums held every two years (Seoul, Montreal, Bilbao, Mexico and Dakar).

The GSEF is also seen as a major force for convergence, through its many partnerships and strengthened collaborations with other international networks, as well as a force for action, which is demonstrated by its international scope and presence on every continent; by its territorial vision of the SSE and local economic development; by its political support from local governments and cities; and by its accompaniment and support for the development of ecosystems.

◆ Vision

Since its creation, the GSEF has been based on the conviction that systemic changes begin at the local level, drawing on partnerships between civil society and the private and public sectors. The ultimate aim is for the SSE to change scale and become the standard for the economy of the future, integrating collective management of common goods.

The GSEF is based on cross-border sharing of inspiring experiences and innovations that address territories' major social and environmental challenges. It places the SSE at the service of communities and local governments, by providing resources, expertise, awareness-raising tools and training to support the emergence and implementation of SSE policies.

The GSEF cooperates with international networks, which are also members, while respecting the expression of the diversity and identity of each and seeking to complement each other. This collective action makes it possible to unite forces around common priorities in order to promote the SSE and, with it, a transformation of development patterns. The GSEF offers a frame of reference for implementing the Sustainable Development Goals.

Governance and network animation

The City of Bordeaux and the Regional Chamber of the Social and Solidarity Economy of Nouvelle-Aquitaine (CRESS N-A) have held the GSEF Co-Chair since October 2021. This Co-Chair embodies the variety of our organization's members (e.g. local governments, networks of municipalities, networks of SSE players, NGOs, universities etc.) and reflects the vision founded around the necessary dialogue in the co-construction of public policies promoting the development of SSE, and the territorial cooperations essential to meeting the fundamental needs of communities, at the heart of economic, inclusive and environmentally sound development.

Ensuring the smooth running of internal governance and the animation of a worldwide network of 84 members is a daily challenge. Animating the network remains a priority for 2024. We must continue to strengthen our shared identity and cultivate a sense of belonging to the network.

The GSEF, in line with its charter and values, aims for democratic governance and therefore must:

- Support members of the Steering Committee in the political leadership of the organization;
- Enable the Steering Committee to play an active role in the GSEF's strategic choices;
- Strengthen the role of continental co-chairs in promoting the GSEF, its advocacy and its missions on a continental scale;
- Ensure the participation of all members in the life of the GSEF and its missions;
- Promote the involvement of members in the GSEF.

The new members of the GSEF Steering Committee were elected at an Extraordinary General Assembly in November 2023, for a 2-year term. This Steering Committee will be responsible for supporting the organization until the BordeauxGSEF2025 Global SSE Forum.

THEMATIC WORKING GROUPS

The General Assembly on May 5 2023 voted to set up 7 thematic working groups, co-piloted by GSEF members, to provide platforms for cooperation and experience-sharing between GSEF members and beyond.

The GSEF's SSE Youth Hub

It has three objectives, which are being pursued by its co-pilots on every continent:

1. Awareness: raise young people's awareness of SSE values and issues: strengthen the Youth & SSE community
2. Advocacy: develop international, national and local advocacy on the role of youth
3. Support: build a platform for exchanges on best practices in supporting youth entrepreneurship: youth co-operatives, youth accompaniment and incubation.

Co-piloted by :

- POJeT - Toulépleu Youth Organization Platform (Ivory Coast)
- INAES - National Institute of Social Economy (Mexico)
- Chantier de l'Économie Sociale - Youth Wing (Quebec, Canada)
- Nouvelle-Aquitaine Region (France)

The impact of SSE public policies on the achievement of SDGs - Research

Develop research on a comparative approach to the role of local SSE policies in the socioecological transition, to feed GSEF's advocacy, training and accompaniment offer.

Co-piloted by Marguerite Mendell (Karl Polanyi Institute, Quebec) and Timothée Duverger (Chair Terr'ESS, France)

Towards strengthened cooperation - International SSE ecosystem

The GSEF is positioned as a key player in the convergence and mutualization of the strengths of the international ecosystem, and opens the way for reflection on partnership strategies between SSE networks.

Co-piloted by GSEF and SSE International Forum

Circular economy

The group's work will be launched in summer 2024.

Co-piloted by the Nouvelle-Aquitaine Region and the City of Bordeaux (France)

Responsible public procurement

With the aim of making public procurement a driving force for the sustainable development of territories and an economic lever for the SSE, the GSEF intends to reference and promote responsible public purchasing initiatives.

Co-piloted by CRESS Nouvelle-Aquitaine (France) and REMCESS (Cameroon)

Funding SSE

Identify, promote and disseminate the challenges of blended public-private-SSE financing.

Co-piloted by INAISE and SVS Fund (South Korea)

SSE and Housing

The group's work will be launched in summer 2024.

Co-piloted by the City of Bordeaux, the Gironde Department (France), Chantier de l'Économie Sociale (Quebec, Canada) and SVS Fund (Korea)

Advocacy

Since its creation, the GSEF has been promoting the values and potential of the SSE on a global scale. Through its international advocacy work, the GSEF has contributed to the historic momentum for recognition of the SSE at international level.

The GSEF has continued to advocate for ambitious public policies with states and local governments, and will continue to support the development of ecosystems supportive of the SSE worldwide.

We must continue to demonstrate that the SSE is a tool for democracy in the development of territories, at the heart of responses to social needs for protection and the fight against exclusion and poverty, and that it can generate sustainable capacities for cooperation and organization of transitions for citizens, anchored in territories and driven by civil society.

The GSEF maintains its influence and collaboration with international institutions and organizations.

The GSEF has been working for years with numerous international, regional and national SSE networks and international organizations such as the United Nations Inter-Agency Task Force on Social and Solidarity Economy (UNTFSSSE), the International Labour Organization (ILO), the European Commission, the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), and United Cities and Local Governments (UCLG), to promote international recognition of the SSE.

UN

Inter-Agency Task Force on Social and Solidarity Economy

Since 2017, the GSEF is an active observer member of UNTFSSSE, the United Nations Inter-Agency Task Force on Social and Solidarity Economy, and participates in all the group's meetings (every 2 months by videoconference). In November 2023, the Task Force had 17 members (UN agencies + OECD) and 13 observers.

As a reminder, the UNTFSSSE was created in 2013 in response to a growing concern within the UN system to rethink development in the wake of multiple global crises and in the context of post-2015 development and the 2030 Agenda of the SDGs.

The UNTFSSSE aims to raise the profile of the Social and Solidarity Economy within the United Nations system and beyond. Task Force members and observers are committed to undertaking collaborative activities to:

- Strengthen recognition of the role of SSE enterprises and organizations in sustainable development;
- Promote awareness of the SSE and consolidate SSE networks;
- Support the creation of an institutional and political environment favorable to SSE;
- Coordinate international efforts, and create and strengthen partnerships.

The United Nations General Assembly adopts a resolution recognizing the role of the SSE in achieving the Sustainable Development Goals.

After years of continuous research and advocacy by the UNTFSSSE, on April 18, 2023 the United Nations General Assembly adopted the resolution “Promoting the Social and Solidarity Economy for Sustainable Development” (A/77/L.60). The governments of Chile, Senegal and Spain co-led this effort, with the support of the French government.

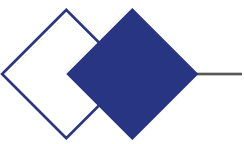

The resolution provides an official definition of the SSE (adopted from the ILC resolution) and recognizes that it can contribute to the achievement and localization of sustainable development goals.

There have also been several regional developments in SSE, including the European Union’s action plan on the Social Economy, launched in 2021, and the African Union’s expected ten-year strategy for SSE.

The April 18, 2023 resolution stems from a momentum created in 2022, with the adoption by the International Labour Conference of the Resolution on Decent Work and the SSE at its 110th session in June; the ECOSOC/HLPF side event on the role of the SSE in achieving the SDGs in July; the OECD Council Recommendation on the Social and Solidarity Economy and Social Innovation in October, and the multi-stakeholder event: “How can international recognition of the Social and Solidarity Economy (SSE) contribute to achieving the SDGs through social and inclusive innovation?” in December.

Examples of close GSEF/UNTFSSSE collaboration in 2023:

- The GSEF President and the GSEF Secretary General have been participating in face-to-face awareness-raising sessions organized by the Spanish government and then by the French government at UN headquarters since 2022, to support the adoption of the resolution by member states.
- The Dakar GSEF2023 Forum was the first major international SSE event following the adoption of the UN Resolution. This is the context in which the Dakar Forum opened, with a political plenary moderated by the UNTFSSSE President Chantal-Line Carpentier: this panel of Ministers brought together Senegal’s Minister of Microfinance and SSE, Côte d’Ivoire’s Minister of Solidarity, and Spain’s Minister of Labor and SSE, among others, who called on their states to pursue their commitment to building public policies and promoting the UN Resolution towards other governments.
- The final political plenary session of the Dakar Forum brought together international institutions. They were able to detail the respective policy recommendations adopted that enabled this SSE Momentum in 2022 and 2023.
- The GSEF took part in the Symposium organized by the Task Force in Montreal in October 2023, to draft the new action plan for the implementation of the UN resolution adopted in April 2023.

The International Coalition of the Social and Solidarity Economy

In 2023, the GSEF took over from SSE International Forum as the rotating secretariat of the International Coalition of the Social and Solidarity Economy (ICSSE).

In 2021, the GSEF joined forces with 4 other global SSE networks (AIM, ICA, ESSFI, ICMIF) to deepen its advocacy efforts within the Coalition, to represent SSE actors in international debates.

The Coalition met for five regular meetings in 2023.

Strengthen advocacy within local government platforms

The GSEF continued to advocate to networks of cities and local governments for the SSE to become a priority in public action plans and local policies. To this end, the GSEF is reinvesting spaces for reflection and exchange between local governments on transitions and local economic development.

In 2023, the GSEF relaunched its collaboration with FAMSI, which is organizing the 6th World Forum on Local Economic Development (WFLED) for the United Cities and Local Governments (UCLG) network in Seville in early 2025. The GSEF is a member of the Forum's organizing committee.

The GSEF has renewed its support for a community of practices within the UCLG. Indeed, the City of Bordeaux (Céline Papin, deputy in charge of International Relations) is an elected member of the global secretariat and has applied to host this SSE community of practices in Daejeon in October 2022, through its presidency of the GSEF. The priority for 2024 will be to relaunch this group.

The GSEF has established a brand image in promoting and supporting the development of local or regional ecosystems with the aim of further developing the global strategy of the SSE. The GSEF's added value, compared with other networks, is its emphasis on and understanding of the need for partnership and ongoing dialogue between civil society and local governments, and for an ecosystem approach.

Panels of mayors and other local governments are organized at each GSEF Global Forum. This political highlight is an eagerly awaited moment when elected representatives demonstrate their commitment to supporting the development of the SSE.

Global Social Economy Network : Toward Convergence across the world

[...] The current challenge facing mankind cannot be resolved by any one country. This is the primary reason why we seek global solidarity for dealing with such issues. A multilateral international network must lay the foundations of global social economic solidarity that encompasses regional communities and countries.

The 2013 Global Social Economy Forum is a venue for sharing ideas and experiences, a place to actively collaborate on envisioning a new social economy paradigm for the future among key counterparts throughout the world. This is a special opportunity for world communities to support the growth of social economy movement to envisage a new agenda for the future. [...]

Resolutions

1. Each local government will promote public-private-community partnership to build a sustainable social economy network and emphasize cooperation for exchange between principal social economy agents in each community.
2. Each of us recognizes the importance of growing citizen empowerment and supporting diverse and widespread community leadership of the social economy.
3. Each of us will engage to raise awareness of the social economy and develop appropriate learning programs for different target groups and mutually share their outcomes.
4. Each of us will share our experiences and visions in order to lead in social innovation and actively operates a social-economy exchange program to foster human resources. [...]

In order to lay the groundwork for setting up a global advisory group, the provisional secretariat will be temporarily located and hold a general meeting in Seoul 2014. [...] We, the 1500 people from 330 cities in 62 countries, participants at the 2016 Global Social Economy Forum (GSEF2016) in Montreal, strongly reaffirm that more intelligent, equitable and sustainable cities are possible and that an economic development model that places people at the center of economic, social and political activity exists. We call this the social and solidarity economy (SSE).

The SSE seeks to integrate economic efficiency, social inclusion, sustainable development and increased participation in the functioning of the economy and urban development. [...]

Besides the State there are cities, local authorities and collective action

[...] The contributions of municipalities, towns and local authorities are also essential, all the more so because governments and regional authorities are closest to its inhabitants and help promote a vibrant democracy and recognize the right to the city.

Facing these challenges also requires governance that requires the active participation of all stakeholders, supported by researchers, to reinforce the expertise and capacity of local governments to better serve the needs and aspirations of communities. We share the conviction that the SSE contributes to the elaboration of a new development model by changing our ways of thinking and acting.

Resolutions

1. Recognize the central role of SSE organizations to overcome the current challenges and to promote a renewed participatory democracy.
2. Multiply participatory governance spaces.
3. Build an inclusive movement for all men and women of all ages and origins.
4. Build public-private-community partnerships to meet the needs and aspirations of our communities.
5. Share our visions, experiences and achievements to promote social innovation, including through CITIES, a strategic partner of GSEF.
6. Recognize and support youth as important actors for the future of the SSE movement.

October 3, 2018

We, the 1700 individuals from 84 countries, participants of the 2018 Global Social Economy Forum – GSEF2018 in Bilbao – strongly affirm that economic development serving both people and planet, leaving no one behind, is rooted in principles of democracy, social justice, solidarity, diversity and peace.

[...] We acknowledge the importance of localizing the 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) for the successful implementation of the 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda. The contribution of the SE and SSE to build a more sustainable, inclusive and resilient society is increasingly recognized by UN agencies, governments and civil society as fundamental to achieve these goals. [...]

Values and competitiveness for an inclusive and sustainable local development

SE and SSE enterprises and organizations are viable, efficient, and generate social value and economic returns. Their competitiveness lies in the social impact generated by their activity, with economic returns reinvested into the community or the organization itself, enabling their ongoing capacity to accomplish their mission.

Locally situated, they must be mindful of the environmental impact of their activities and adjust accordingly. SE and SSE enterprises promote and create decent work embedded in values of social justice and respect labour rights. Sovereignty and transparency are more present in their supply chains, delivering goods and services based on the needs of the community they serve. Democratic governance and management practices are at the core of their raison d'être. [...]

Resolutions

- Continue the co-construction and co-development of public policies and affirm the central role that each of us plays in overcoming the main challenges faced by our cities and communities. [...]
- Advocate member states to call for a UN resolution on Social and Solidarity Economy. [...]
- Further collaborate in the development of linkages between territories (both urban and rural) and work towards greater policy coherence at all levels of government (local, regional, national, international). [...]
- Improve environmental practices to become more transparent in production-consumption circuits in order to generate a necessary ecological and just transition.

[...] The unexpected COVID-19 pandemic in 2020 made it impossible to convene GSEF2020 in Mexico City. However, a highly successful GSEF Global Virtual Forum was held with 8,500 participants from 19 to 23 October 2020. Today on the last day of the 5th edition, organized in a hybrid format due to the ongoing crisis, we issue this declaration to express the shared commitment of all participants from across the planet, with significant contributions from Mexico and the Latin American and the Caribbean (LAC) region. [...]

[...] SSE is currently playing a critical role in addressing and mitigating the short and long-term impacts of COVID-19 and may thus significantly contribute to a paradigm change. Not only has SSE shown its extraordinary resilience as existing collective enterprises and organizations ramp up their activities, but these experiences are also inspiring and spawning new initiatives in all sectors, notably in vital proximity health and social services including daycare, homecare for the elderly, and collective health care provision, in many parts of the world, strengthening public services and complementing government action. [...]

We call on all governments and international and regional organizations to:

- [...] Foster the fundamental values of humanity and social inclusion in all aspects of life, including gender equity, the elimination of all forms of discrimination, and dignity.
- Increase the participation of young people in positioning SSE as a means to face the current health, socioeconomic and environmental crisis.
- Promote the development and adoption of co-constructed regulatory and legislative frameworks, and enable public policies at the local level in favor of SSE to strengthen its ecosystems.
- Collaborate and coordinate with national, regional and local governments. All stakeholders – citizens, SSE networks and organizations – must participate in this process.
- Support decentralized cooperation in order to enhance the local anchoring of SSE

We specifically call on local governments to:

- Adopt a local development approach embracing the principles and values of SSE.
- [...] Strengthen the development of local and regional ecosystems by promoting innovative partnerships between actors of the traditional and/or informal economy, SSE actors and local governments. [...]

GLOBAL SOCIAL AND SOLIDARITY ECONOMY FORUM

1 - 6 May 2023

6th edition

DAKAR 2023

The transition from 'informal' economies to collective and sustainable economies for our territories

As stated in its founding charter, the GSEF invites its member cities to apply to host the Global Forum every two years. The members of the Steering Committee, the Advisory Committee and all GSEF members join the General Secretariat in thanking the City of Dakar, RACTES and the Senegalese Ministry of Microfinance and SSE, as well as the Senegalese Youth Consortium, for the success of this sixth GSEF Global Forum. After the relocation of the organization's headquarters to Bordeaux, and 10 years after its creation, the success of the Dakar GSEF2023 Forum is a powerful symbol for our organization.

Two main objectives:

- A first political objective: the Forum brought together ministers, mayors, elected representatives and leaders from all over the world, international experts and development agencies who are committed to promoting an economy centered on people and respect for the environment, an essential tool for achieving the 17 Sustainable Development Goals.
- The second objective focused on exchanges of experience and expertise from all continents. They highlighted successful innovations by local governments and all those involved in the SSE, focusing on seven themes and challenges.

Timeline

The GSEF2023 Global Forum was a crossroads for human encounters, for people who are convinced of the need to share experience and to promote the practices being tried out in their territories. The added value and the outcome of the Forum lie in the creation of bonds and relationships between people from every continent. The 6,000 participants attending the Dakar GSEF2023 Forum demonstrated the strength of the proposals put forward by the global SSE ecosystem, from academics to international institutions, from agricultural cooperatives to women's groups, from mutual benefit societies to social enterprises, from elected representatives to young people... These actors in social and environmental transitions pooled their experiences and energies.

A total of 8 plenary sessions, including 3 political sessions, were held at the start of each day of the main Forum at the Grand Théâtre National.

- The panel of ministers, led by Senegal's Minister of Microfinance and SSE and Ivory Coast's Minister of Solidarity, called on their governments to continue their commitment to building public policies and promoting the United Nations resolution with their counterparts in other governments.
- The various mayors and representatives of municipalities gathered around two round tables were able to present their proposals for the development of the SSE in their territories.
- The international institutions discussed the political recommendations that were adopted to make this 2022 and 2023 SSE Momentum possible.

Special events

The organizers took up the challenge of organizing a 6-day event. The main Forum was preceded by two special events, in which young people from the SSE Caravans took part.

Youth and SSE Pre-Forum

The Youth and SSE Pre-Forum was a new addition to the GSEF Forums: 2 days organized by the young people of the Consortium Jeunesse Sénégal, with the aim of highlighting youth SSE initiatives around the world and encouraging dialogue between them, as well as co-constructing a plea, the Call of the Youth.

The SDG Village (Sustainable Development Goals) enabled 56 exhibitors from 12 countries to present their experiences and demonstrate the essential role of young people in the pursuit of sustainable and inclusive development through the SSE.

The unprecedented participation of young people at the Forum demonstrated the driving role of youth in sustainable development. Young women and men are key economic players and citizens who our societies must trust, and whose participation must be valued, particularly within the areas of consultation for the development of public SSE policies.

The SSE Caravans enabled nearly 200 young players, entrepreneurs, community activists and researchers from 11 countries in Central and West Africa to take part in the Forum.

They were organized thanks to the involvement of the focal points in each of the countries concerned.

Women's day for SSE

The Women's Day for SSE was a day dedicated to the essential commitment of women in the SSE. As key players in this sector, the participants and speakers were able to highlight the challenges they face and identify innovative solutions to meet them.

The day was structured around an intergenerational dialogue between 6 SSE Champions, experts in their fields, and 18 Young Women Leaders.

A few recommendations from the Forum

Over the course of the 8 plenary sessions and 80 workshops and self-organized sessions of the main Forum, more than 400 speakers shared their experiences and exchanged ideas on 7 main themes.

The Forum's Scientific Committee then drew on these reflections to make recommendations.

Theme 1 - Co-construction of public policies

We need to base this co-construction in favor of inclusive local economic development on “shared territorial diagnoses”, the fruit of citizen action and the reflections of civil society players.

Theme 2 - Blue Economy

A sustainable blue economy requires a change of scale and paradigm with regard to the exploitation of fish stocks and biodiversity: reviewing public policies on the authorization of industrial fishing in favor of small-scale fishing.

Theme 3 - Green Economy

Promoting citizens' involvement in the sustainable management of water, soil, biodiversity and waste, to encourage the emergence of agroecological production systems and local, resilient food systems.

Theme 4 - Digital Economy

To counter the agenda of predation and dependence on the digital sector, the SSE must actively promote uses based on transparency, innovation, data sovereignty and the fight against the digital divide.

Theme 5 - Funding SSE

Call on local governments to facilitate the emergence of financing instruments to support local initiatives proposed or led by SSE actors.

Theme 6 - Political dialogue

Local governments must support the structuring of multi-stakeholder SSE networks, and secure spaces for dialogue and consultation, at the level of their territories, between civil society, SSE actors, conventional economy actors and public authorities.

Theme 7 - Links between research and practice in the SSE

The link between Research and SSE practices must work towards the systematization of SSE indicators and their integration into statistics and accounting, from the local to the international level.

The GSEF2023 Dakar Declaration - May 6, 2023

The Dakar Declaration DOWNLOAD

We, the more than 5000 individuals present at GSEF2023 in Dakar, from more than 250 cities and 70 countries affirm that throughout the world, everyone has the right to decent work and sufficient income to live in dignity. A liveable world requires emancipation from precarity and the destructive impact of the dominant economic model on the planet.

We also affirm that today, the social and solidarity economy (SSE) is the socio-economic model best able to achieve the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals by 2030. Hosting GSEF 2023 in Dakar, Senegal, the first Forum in Africa, is an exceptional event for the internationalization of the SSE on this continent. The social and solidarity economy is indeed present throughout the world, demonstrating its capacity to positively transform our societies and our territories.

Each new GSEF Forum reminds us that the power of the SSE lies both in its great unity and its great diversity. The diversity of the SSE increases its capacity for innovation and experimentation, while respecting local cultures and identities while working towards greater democracy and social and environmental justice.

The GSEF2023 Forum in Dakar comes at a special time for several reasons.

First, because we are gradually emerging from the pandemic which has had dramatic humanitarian, health, economic and social consequences. The GSEF Declaration Mexico 2021 reminds us that SSE organizations were able to demonstrate their capacity for resilience during these hard times.

Second, because of the inequality generated by the dominant model. There are winners, but above all there are losers. Young people, women, people in informal, popular and platform economies are especially affected. The economic model proposed by the social and solidarity economy based on cooperation and not competition, the primacy of people and nature over profit, is a powerful means to reverse this trend.

Our world today is characterized by increasing inequality and poverty, wars, discrimination and a succession of alarming IPCC reports. As already stated by GSEF Mexico in 2021, we need « a paradigm shift giving priority to people and the planet ».

Finally in one of its resolutions, the 2016 Montreal Declaration invited public authorities, and in particular, international organizations, to recognize the key role played by the SSE. The series of recent recommendations by international organizations, including the ILO, the OECD and the UN on April 18, have successfully advanced the institutional recognition of the social and solidarity economy. Continental organizations and States have also adopted enabling legislation, support and development strategies for the SSE. The social and solidarity economy is increasingly part of the political and economic landscape in all countries throughout the world.

However, these resolutions must not constitute mere texts ; they must lead to concrete actions. Therefore, given that Dakar 2023 is the first major international post-UN SSE Forum, it has made it possible to embody the resolution and to build a roadmap together. It will allow us to develop transformative territorial policies to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals set by the UN.

By focusing on the specific conditions of young people and women, who experience even greater precariousness than the rest of the population and whose empowerment is a priority issue, as well as on improving the working and living conditions of workers in the informal economy, this Forum is also an opportunity to remind local and national governments of their responsibilities. These focuses have demonstrated the need to promote the transition from informal economies to collective and sustainable economies to enable access to social protection for workers living in economic insecurity. This also requires facilitating access to markets, sharing services, expertise, knowledge and resources.

Finally, we affirm that it is urgent to reconsider how wealth is created and work towards a more equitable redistribution.

Dakar GSEF2023 has been the occasion for numerous exchanges, reflections and proposals paving the way for an ecological, social and economic transformation.

ENVIRONMENTAL CHARTER & SSE PARTNERS

GSEF is aware of the environmental impact of the international travel inherent in the activities of a global organization, and strives to limit it. Remote communications and meetings are preferred. The train is systematically used when distances allow, and carbon offsetting is implemented for air travel. Rather than traveling directly, the GSEF secretariat calls on its continental co-presidents to take part in events in their region.

The secretariat is committed to a policy of responsible purchasing, calling on SSE players in the fields of accounting (Finacoop), banking (Crédit Coopératif), payroll (Assistea RH - cooperative), human resources (Agec & co), information system (association La Traversée) and communications (Otempora cooperative).

COMMUNICATION & SOCIAL MEDIA

Communication is a key tool for carrying out GSEF's advocacy mission and ensuring the circulation of information within the network.

Work on GSEF's communication strategy and new visual identity came to fruition at the start of 2023, coinciding with the recruitment of a communications and network officer.

The GSEF's LinkedIn and Facebook social networks were reinvested this year, to promote and inform about the activities of the General Secretariat, GSEF members and partners, as well as to relay mobilization and raise the profile of DakarGSEF2023.

The number of subscribers/followers on each platform increased: +1,500 on LinkedIn, +450 on Facebook.

GSEF also posted replays of its webinars, DakarGSEF2023 plenary sessions and Forum capitalization videos on Youtube.

The GSEF will continue to advocate ambitious public policies to states and local governments, and will continue to support the development of ecosystems favorable to the SSE worldwide.

We must collectively maintain the momentum of the Dakar GSEF2023 Forum and keep demonstrating that the SSE is a tool for democracy in the development of territories, at the heart of responses to social needs for protection and the fight against exclusion and poverty, and that it can generate sustainable capacities for cooperation and organization of transitions for citizens, anchored in territories and driven by civil society.

Since the Dakar Forum, GSEF has been called upon by numerous governments and civil society players to support the development of SSE ecosystems. The expressed needs relate to the development of public policies, capacity building (training), support for job creation among young people, and the structuring of networks of players or networks of municipalities.

Accompanying the change of scale following the momentum of international recognition of the SSE

After overseeing the relocation of the GSEF to Bordeaux in 2022 and the organization of the Dakar Forum in 2023, it is now crucial that the GSEF develops its operational capacity to support the scaling-up of the SSE. As announced at the last two General Assemblies, we are determined to develop GSEF's operational capacity.

Operationality is an existing function, at the heart of the organization's business model.

Indeed, through its international advocacy work, GSEF has contributed to the historic momentum for recognition of the SSE at an international level. Following the adoption of the European Social Economy Plan in December 2021, the year 2022 saw the adoption of an OECD recommendation and a universal definition of the SSE by the ILO. On April 18, 2023, the United Nations General Assembly adopted the SSE resolution "Promoting the Social and Solidarity Economy for Sustainable Development". It is in this context that the GSEF will pursue its missions in 2024.

Our responsibility as a global SSE organization is now to support the change of scale, enabling the widespread development of public policies favorable to the deployment of SSE structures, co-constructed through close dialogue with networks of SSE players, civil society and communities.

Programs will be achieved through strengthened collaboration with GSEF members, as field implementation partners. The strength of the GSEF members' network will be demonstrated by the sharing of expertise.
